Course Description

This course explores the development of the modern world since 1500, a time span of over 500 years. Students will encounter major world events, revolutions, and people and ideas from the east and the west. We will explore, compare, and contrast religious, political, economic, social, and cultural shifts, as well as how ideologies such as nationalism, liberalism, communism, and fascism have shaped our modern world.

The course has three main purposes. The first is to present students with information about and interpretations of modern world history since approximately 1500. The course will emphasize the diversity of those experiences even as it seeks to discover common themes. The second purpose is to introduce students to (or deepen their familiarity with) the discipline of history. By reading works of historical scholarship as well as original historical documents, students will see for themselves how historians ply their craft—what kinds of evidence they use and how they interpret that evidence to illuminate the past. The third purpose of the course, closely related to the second, is to challenge students to think critically about the development of the modern world. Students will learn how to identify and critique scholarly arguments in the work of professional historians, and how to construct historical arguments of their own. This course will routinely explore sensitive and controversial topics. Your teaching assistant and I will not guide you to one single “right” answer—for there is no such thing. Instead, we will help you to develop your critical thinking skills through historical investigation. Although names, dates, and events are important, the learning emphasis will be on applying those methods in the construction of historical arguments using both primary and secondary sources.

Course Requirements

Examinations

Students are required to take THREE EXAMS. The four exams each worth 30 points, will be based on the material covered in the lectures and on the content of the reading assignments. Study questions for the examinations will be distributed in class prior to the exams. If you answer the study questions, you can use those answers to help you with the exams. Each test may involve a combination of multiple-choice, identifying, and essay questions. The final exam will cover only material from the required chapters that were not included in the other tests. The course will enforce Jinan University standards of academic integrity. You may not carry I-Phones or other electronic devices at the time of the examination.

Participation

Participation is essential to building fundamental understanding of the subject matter. All students are expected to contribute actively to class activities by coming to class prepared. Being prepared means the following:

- not assuming that participation simply means showing up for class
- be motivated and take responsibility for your own learning.
- thoroughly reading and studying all material before arriving to class
- paying careful attention to what classmates and teachers have to say
- taking notes during lectures, videos, and discussion
- actively contributing to class discussions
- being are alert and paying attention throughout the entire period
- completing assignments on current topics

Out-of-Class Time

The general guideline for class preparation has typically been to spend at least two hours outside class preparing for every hour spent in class. Please know that everyone in this class might make an A. I'll be thrilled if that happens, and I will feel immensely successful. Usually, however, given the normal distribution of students, some care more than others and some work harder than others (some are characterized by both qualities). Those who care more and work hard usually get an A. That does not mean that you receive a grade based on your effort.

Extra-Credit Activities

You may receive extra credit for statements of one or two pages about what you learned from approved lectures or films.

Classroom Decorum

RESPECT FOR DIVERSITY-It is my intent that students from all diverse backgrounds and perspectives be well-served by this course, and that the diversity that students bring to a class be viewed as a resource, strength and benefit. Your suggestions about how to improve the effectiveness of this course are encouraged and appreciated.

CELL PHONES- Please turn off your cell phones or turn them to the silent mode. Do not answer a call during class, if an emergency arises please step outside. Do not text message during class. Also, iPhones are great, but keep turned off and in your bag until after class.

Miscellaneous Insights

To Read or not to Read: That is the Question! This is essentially a lecture class. However, required readings are not optional. Lecture notes alone, won't suffice! Students who fail to do the required readings, by the assigned due date, will have great difficulty keep up with the class.

Procrastination

Postponing the readings to the night before a test makes it virtually impossible to put the ideas and events mentioned in the text into their proper historical context—this is largely the purpose of the lectures. While this course will not emphasize memorization of names and dates, some memorization is unavoidable, and it is easier to memorize one thing per day than fifty things in one night.

Problems

If you are feeling overwhelmed, find yourself falling behind, or are having any problems outside of class that are adversely affecting your performance in class, be sure to let me know. Do not wait until the end of this very short semester when it will be too late. I am more than willing to work with you to insure you do well in this class, but I need to know you are having difficulties. Come to see me, leave a message in my voice mail or send an email as soon as a problem arises and we can work something out. If you are struggling academically, I will gladly give you extra help.

“Face-to-Face” Interaction

I strongly urge all of you to come to my office hours even on the flimsiest of pretexts. I don’t think I’m too intimidating and I honestly enjoy getting to know students.

Special Circumstances

If you have a specific physical or learning disability and require accommodations, please let the instructor know early in the semester so that your needs may be appropriately meet.

Grading Policy

Participation	10%
Exam 1	30%

Grading Scale

The instructor will use the grading system as applied by JNU:

Definition	Letter Grade	Score
Excellent	A	90~100
Good	B	80~89
Satisfactory	C	70~79
Poor	D	60~69

Attendance

Attendance is mandatory in the class. It would be recorded each class and forms part of students’ participation record. Students should inform the instructor at the earliest opportunity if they need to ask for a leave. All absences may have negative effect on students’ final grades. Any students with more than three unexcused absences will automatically fail the course.

Academic Integrity

As members of the Jinan University academic community, students are expected to be honest in all of their academic coursework and activities. Academic dishonesty, includes (but is not limited to) cheating on assignments or examinations; plagiarizing, i.e., misrepresenting as one’s own work any work done by another; submitting the same paper, or a substantially similar paper, to meet the requirements of more than one course without the approval and consent of the instructors concerned; or sabotaging other students' work within these general definitions. Instructors, however, determine what constitutes academic misconduct in the courses they teach. Students found guilty of academic misconduct in any portion of the academic work face penalties that range from the lowering of their course grade to awarding a grade of E for the entire course.
