Course Description

This course is an introductory survey of film history. Looking at major developments, explains concepts, summarizes debates in film studies, defines technical terms, describes major periods and movements, and discusses historical situations. The emergence of new artistic media, subject matter, and strategies of making and viewing will be also discussed. Emphasis will be placed on the methods of interpreting the works, especially in relation to then-current social practices and cultural values.

Required Textbook(s)

A Short History of Film—2nd Edition by Wheeler Winston Dixon (Author), Gwendolyn Audrey Foster (Author) Rutgers University Press

Prerequisites

No prerequisites

Course Goals

Students will be able to:

1. Articulate the role of movies in evolving society, both reflecting and sometimes leading social change

2. The role of the aesthetic elements of a movie in creating its message and potential for audience engagement
3. Specifically, the students will be able to analyze and articulate the roles of directing, cinematography, audio, set design, acting and other variables that contribute to the movie experience

NOTICE: In order to provide students with an interesting and enjoyable educational experience, this syllabus may be changed at the discretion of the instructor at any time with notification.

Project 1: View the Potempkin step sequence and the video offering analysis of it.
(Due Wednesday of second week)

Explain in an essay of 1-2 pages: Your answers will be your opinion. There are no right or wrong answers UNLESS your answers show you gave this little or no thought.

1. Was the sequence effective at communicating a message?
2. What was the message?
3. The video is very violent and disturbing for many. Was the level and amount of violence necessary to communicate the message?

4. There are many closeups of the people in the crowd, many of whom are shot. Why weren't the faces of the soldiers shown?

Good	B	80~89
Satisfactory	C	70~79
Poor	D	60~69
Failed	E	Below 60

Course Requirements

1. Students are expected to read the required readings prior to the class session in which they are discussed.
2. I will respond to emails in a timely manner. It is best to make an appointment or speak to me after lecture.
3. Please check your email regularly for instructions and readings.

Methods of Instruction

Lecture via video with PowerPoints distributed to students.

Attendance

Attendance is mandatory in the class. It would be recorded each class and forms part of students' participation record. Students should inform the instructor at the earliest opportunity if they need to ask for a leave. All absences may have negative effect on students' final grades. Any students with more than three unexcused absences will automatically fail the course.

Given the online nature of this course, attendance will be impossible to measure. Your viewing of the videos and reading of the text will be verified by your work on exams.

Your thought processes and attention to detail will be noted through the two written assignments outside exams.

Academic Integrity

As members of the Jinan University academic community, students are expected to be honest in all of their academic coursework and activities. Academic dishonesty, includes (but is not limited to) cheating on assignments or examinations; plagiarizing, i.e., misrepresenting as one's own work any work done by another; submitting the same paper, or a substantially similar paper, to meet the requirements of more than one course without the approval and consent of the instructors concerned; or sabotaging other students' work within these general definitions. Instructors, however, determine what constitutes academic misconduct in the courses they teach. Students found guilty of academic misconduct in any portion of the academic work face penalties that range from the lowering of their course grade to awarding a grade of E for the entire course.
