Course Description

This course is an introduction to the core questions of philosophy examined within the context of their historical development. Within the course readings, we will analytically study present and historical alternative perspectives on a wide range of issues concerning metaphysics (the nature of reality), epistemology (the nature of knowledge), and ethics (the nature of value). Students will be presented with alternative views on philosophical issues and encouraged to reflect on the content to arrive at their own conclusions, which should be based on arguments in during the discussions with classmates, as well as on the discussions in our readings. The purpose of philosophy is to encourage every person to think for themselves.

Required Textbook(s)

Reading materials will be provided by the course instructor in class.

Grading Policy

Evaluation	Percentage
4 weekly written reflections (15 points each) – due weekly	4 x 15 points each (60 points)
5 Weekly discussion – participation	4 points each x 5 (20 points) – must show up and talk in discussion for points
1 Final Exam	20 points x 1 (20 points)
Total = 100 % /100points

Weekly reflections require you to draw upon the readings and videos for each particular week. Each assignment must make at least five direct references to our videos, and be your own completely original work without the aid of AI.

Grading Scale

The instructor will use the grading system as applied by JNU:

Definition	Letter Grade	Score
Excellent	A	90~100
Good	B	80~89
Satisfactory	C	70~79
Poor	D	60~69
Failed	E	Below 60

It is important to complete all course readings, to review all power points, and to participate in class discussions. Your unit assessments, written assignments, and final exam will cover all unit materials.

Academic Integrity

As members of the Jinan University academic community, students are expected to be honest in all of their academic coursework and activities. Academic dishonesty, includes (but is not limited to) cheating on assignments or examinations; plagiarizing, i.e., misrepresenting as one's own work any work done by another; submitting the same paper, or a substantially similar paper, to meet the requirements of more than one course without the approval and consent of the instructors concerned; or sabotaging other students' work within these general definitions. Instructors, however, determine what constitutes academic misconduct in the courses they teach. Students found guilty of academic misconduct in any portion of the academic work face penalties that range from the lowering of their course grade to awarding a grade of E for the entire course.
